

FACULTY FORUM

Assessing Students' Learning

Friday, September
18, 2009
9:00-10:00am
102 Mann Library

Are They Learning What You Intend?: Assessment of Student Learning

We all have intentions of what our students should learn. What are the most effective and efficient ways to get evidence of that learning? How can our course assignments motivate students' learning beyond merely seeking a good grade? Join the Cornell Information Competency Faculty Fellows in an exchange of assignment and assessment ideas and new practices. Sample grading rubrics will be available for adaptation to course assignments and please bring your own assignments to discuss in this hands-on session.

Sponsored by the Center for Teaching Excellence and the Cornell Undergraduate Information Competency Initiative.